

SEPTEMBER 2003

FLYERS AND TIRES AUG 9-10

There were no member or board meetings in August, for it was "full steam ahead" with Flyers & Tires '03 – and what a success it was! There is no way the weather could have been better! Your Chapter made enough on the food concession to send a record number of Young Eagles to EAA Air Academy camps next summer – with enough left over to pay the bills and make some needed upgrades in the Chapter's facilities/properties.

The Airport had a good "gate", the exhibitors were happy, even the Greenwood Methodist Church made a "sinful" profit on their fantabulous homemade ice cream and pie. The crowd was estimated at around 4000 to 5000.

It was especially gratifying to see the turnout of EAA 932 members that showed up to lend a hand – well over 75% of the membership! Hey, you guys are good and we love ya!

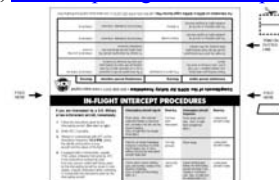

The next Chapter meeting is Saturday Sept. 13 at 10 AM, followed by Young Eagle Flights from 11 to 4 PM.

INTERCEPTION!

From AOPA ASF

Intercepts in Presidential TFRs raise awareness concerns

Aug. 27 — Two intercepts during recent Presidential trips to the Pacific Northwest and Great Lakes Regions are raising concerns that pilots who get caught where they're not supposed to be don't know how to respond. "Sixty-nm-wide Presidential movement TFRs (temporary flight restrictions) continue to be the norm when President Bush travels outside the Washington, D.C., area," said AOPA President Phil Boyer. "AOPA believes those TFRs are excessively large and continues to push security officials for more realistic dimensions. But until that happens, GA pilots have got to know about and avoid the TFRs and know what to do if they're intercepted. The consequences of not knowing could be deadly." AOPA and the Air Safety Foundation have a number of tools, including an intercept procedures card.... (If somebody points a gun at you, you'd best know how to act! You can download a copy from the AOPA website, www.aopa.org/asf/intercept.pdf - Ed.)

SPECIAL FLYERS & TIRES GUEST

By Jeff Hill, Sr.

Russian Cosmonaut Col. Anatoly Artsebarski, on a U.S. tour and due to appear at the Challenger Space Center in Woodstock the following week, visited Flyers & Tires Aug 10. Col. Artsebarski was the commander on the legendary mission Soyuz TM-12 (1991) where his crew docked with the Russian Space Station Mir. Commander Artsebarsky, along with a fellow cosmonaut, boarded Mir while the rest of the crew flew back to earth after a relatively short 8-day visit. Anatoly took 6 space walks during his 145-day mission, spending over 33 hours walking in space.

I had the honor of taking Col. Artsebarski up in my L-3. I had no idea if he had any experience in this type machine. His English is limited, but through gestures and demonstrations I (think) I was able to point out a few important items in flying the Aeronca: adverse yaw, the best indication of pitch attitude and the performance limitations of 65 hp vs. our weight, which was Max. Gross (plus a smidgen).

When I raised my arms and told him, "you've got it", I wasn't surprised to see him fly it like he had one at home! Anatoly is a good stick – something that's difficult to define, but easy to recognize.

We had a short chat afterwards. He said getting to fly the Aeronca was "such a pleasant surprise, that really made him feel good". He asked what I did and when I told him that I was retired from TWA he said, "Oh yes, of course I know TWA." Well then, I felt pretty good, too.

THREE RETIRED PILOTS by JHsr.

Oscar: "Foxy! You've got a suppository in your left ear." Papa: "There's one in your right ear, too!" Foxy: "Oh, good! I thought both my batteries went dead at the same time. Now I wonder where my other hearing aid is!? Probably in the medicine chest."

BEFORE AND AFTER

EAA 932 Pres. Mark Krohn and wife Tammy have a new paint job on their C-170. Now it's a real head turner (just like Tammy)!
